FASHION SHOW HAS THE GARDEN ALL TO ITSELF.

with a Gentleman From Paris to Explain Things Only He Has an Absorbing sorrew Wrapped in a Long Coat-Corset There That Would Bazzle You.

The fashion show at Madison Square Garden was, according to schedule, to have begun 'setting the fashions for 1903at 8 o'clock last night. As a matter fact, the fashions of 1903-04 remained hopelessly unset until 8:30, for the doors

Meanwhile a crowd of buyers, importers manufacturers, dressmakers and folk whose interest in chiffons was non-professional packed the lobby to suffocation and spilled out into Madison avenue. A few of the men lost their tempers and went away, but the women stood their ground. Womankind is used to being offered up on the Altar of Fashion.

When the perspiring but enthusiastic crowd finally emptied into the Garden, it looked less imposing; but, even in that hall of echoing spaces, it made a good showing. so did the exhibits.

If any one has an idea that the Fashion show is a near relation to the somewhat melancholy display of frocks that graced the Dressmakers' Convention last spring, let him abandon that theory at once. The model gowns and coats on view at the Garden are well worth a visit and are important enough to obtain serious consideration for the show. The most famous dressmakers of Paris and other European capitals have sent over models-150 in all-and probably never before have so many handsome Parisian frocks been shown to the public at one Moreover, the Parisian dressmakers have sent a delegate along with their frocks.

Mr. Otto Adler is the man, and he speaks as one having authority on all matters pertaining to French fashions. He is to contribute to the lecture course of the show certain lectures on European fashions, and he submits to interviews with Gallie

But he is troubled, seriously troubled He notices that American women are buy-ing and wearing long suit coats under the impression that they are modish. This, it appears, is wrong, lamentably wrong.

Parisiennes are wearing long separate coats, but for the suit coats they cling to the short jacket and the bolero. Here are we buying long coats for our coat-and-skirt suits, and we cannot, sartorially speaking, be saved.

Therefore, the heart of the delegate of the Parisian dressmakers is sad within him and he is moved to pained and vehe-ment protest. Let the buyers of early utumn street suits hear him and mend their ways.

The French gowns and coats are of all types, from evening gowns to street gowns; varying in price from $3,000 down to a modest $200. Some of them are weird, many are striking rather than beautiful, but a legen number are really lovely and many are striking rather than beautiful, but a large number are really lovely, and all should furnish a liberal supply of valuable ideas to dressmakers and buyers who were not lucky enough to study French modes in Parisian ateliers this season.

The American exhibit, too, is admirable. It is supposed to include models from all over the country, but New York makers dominate, and certain well-known establishments have furnished models that will

Across the way a pretty girl with an ingratiating manner is singing the praises of a new petticoat warranted to flare firmly and to defy the vicious influences of the flatiron building. A surging mab of women nearby are interested in nothing more thrilling than a new dress binding. Dressmakers imposing and humble, fat and thin, old and young, are taking notes and comparing impressions, and through the feminine crowd is scattered a surprisingly large element of masculinity, for this is the season when the town is full of Western buyers, and, almost to a man, they have drifted to the Fashion Show.

have drifted to the Fashion Show.

Acting Mayor Fornes, Senator Depew and Secretary Cortelyou were down for speeches at the formal opening of the show, but Mr. Fornes was the only one of the three who showed up. Mr. Depew's lumbago prevented his dedicating airy persifiage to airier chiffons.

Acting Mayor Fornes apparently couldn't secretary and validatily charged into what

FAIRIES IN A NEW OPERA.

A Tuneful and Dainty One Is a "Princess of Kensington."

It must have given some of the hardened habitués of "comic opera" first nights a severe shock last night to find themselves once more confronted with an essay in the field of real operetta. The title of this essay is "A Princess of Kensington," and it was disclosed to a large and well-disposed audience at the Broadway Theatre. The libretto is the work of Basil Hood and the music is by Edward German. These are names well known in the London world of shadow of old age has stolen over his choicest lines, his most melodious lyrics.

Mr. German's music is generally good and at times excellent. It is full of melody, it is graceful, dainty and excellently scored. Some of the voice writing is better than the voices, but that is not the composer's fault. The concerted pieces and ensembles are especially good, and as the chorus can sing as well as wear many costumes, these numbers have their full value.

James T. Powers was amusing in his familiar manner at William Jetf, the sallor who had two sweethearts, and William Stephens gave a dry and thoroughly English performance of Puck. Walter S. Young Folks of Newport Have a Dinner Dance at a House Warming.

ON THE VANDERBILT FARM.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 31.-Most of the younger set of Newport society went, tonight, to Sandy Point Farm, in Portsmouth. where Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Vanderbilt gave their first large entertainment of the summer. The affair was a house-warming party in the form of a dinner dance, where all the decorations were suggestive of farming and farm life. Alfred G. Vanderbilt and Miss Ruth Twombly each drove a coachload of guests to Sandy Point.

The broad veranda which surrounds the the broad veraina which surrounds the house was inclosed and here the tables were laid. The ceiling and sides of the enclosure were covered with foliage, giving the appearance of an outdoor scene. In one corner stood a well and old oaken bucket. In another were some sheaves of wheat, and placed around at different points were miniature haystacks, rakes, pitchforks, ploughs and other agricultural implements. Even the table decorations were made to represent farm life. Each table bore a miniature green field, in which cows and sheep seemed to graze, while fluffy little chicks were sprinkled over the The ices were moulded into chickens, cows, roosters and sheen

AN ELECTRIC WEDDING.

Electric Lamps to Light Bridal Path of Miss Agnes R. Lane.

Cotton decorations and the strains of 'Dixie" as wedding music, as well as thousands of miniature electric lamps inside and outside of Christ Episcopal Church on Bedford avenue, Williamsburg, will mark the marriage in that church, on the night of Sept. 16, of Miss Agnes Rose Lane, the daughter of Augustus R. Lane of 80 Rodney street, Williamsburg, to James G ,Rossman, the president of an electric company in Atlanta, Ga, who is also the head of the Ponce de Leon Amuse ment Company.

Miss Lane has been on the stage for several years, having spent most of her time in the South. She has been connected with some of Richard Mansfield's productions, and was with the Hoyt companies for two

SARATOGA, Aug. 31.—Mnie. Janauschek. the once great actress, who has been ill here for two years or more, read in the New York papers of this morning about the proposal of James P. Tossini of 215 Reid avenue, Brooklyn, to sell her wardrobe and jeweis. and she promptly flew into a rage that would have been quite magnificent enough for stage purposes. After she had read the proposition, she said: "That man will not sell my costumes and jewels, because he cannot. I would like to see him do so without authority from me. He has no such authority and will not get it. I suppose he thinks he will get the few dollars I owe him if he sells the tatters of Meg Merrilles, or the nightdress of Lady Macbeth, or the royal robes of Marie Stuart or Marie Antoinette, or the throne room jewels which the Maria of France and the Maria of Britain wore. But let him not worry about those few dollars. He will get them in good time, in my good time, and I will pay him quick."

Mme. Janauschek is boarding at the Ashton, one of the smaller boarding houses Ashton, one of the smaller boarding houses of the village, in Franklin street. She has two of the best rooms in the house, one of which is occupied by her maid. To those who know the actress's financial condition it may seem that a maid is rather an expensive luxury; but the woman is not a luxury, she is an absolute necessity. Mme. Janauschek's left side is entirely paralyzed, and she suffers, besides, from what her physician, Dr. James E. Kelley, calls a vannter hernia. Were it not for the attentions of the maid, the aged actress would be hardly able to help herself.

Dr. Kelley told The Sun correspondent this afternoon that the hernia had been reduced and the effect of the paralysis has been so modified that the patient can walk about her room, with difficulty. There is no hope, however, of ultimate recovery and, in a woman of hime. Janauschek's age (she is about 74), a second stroke of paralysis may come at any time.

But it is the financial, rather than the physical, condition of the actress that needs attention now and needs it in a hurry. She is indebted to the proprietor of her hotel for something over $400, and he wants his money. In speaking of his boarder this afternoon Mr. Ashton said:

"Mme. Janauschek will have been with me two years in November. The last money I received from her was last July, when she paid me $50 on account. She now owes me a little more than $400, and I feel that I ought to have the money. I am very sorry for madame, but I have not the capital of the village, in Franklin street. She paid me $50 on account. She now owes me a little more than $400, and I feel that I ought to have the money. I am very sorry for madame, but I have not the capital to keep her and her maid in two of the best rooms I have in the house for nothing.

"I was in New York on Saturday and called at the office of the Actors' Fund, in company with the secretary of Harrison Grey Fiske, to lay the case before them. I found to my surprise that the officers of the Actors' Fund do not feel very kindly disposed toward Mme. Janauschek. It seems that they were appealed to in her behalf some time ago and they offered to provide for her. She not only declined the offer, because she regarded it as aitogether too small for her maintenance, but sent, so I was informed, what was regarded as rather an insulting letter to the secretary or some other officer of the fund.

"I was given to understand that the

"I was given to understand that the officers of the fund were not inclined to officers of the fund were not inclined to take up the case again until madame was in a mood to give their offer more respectful consideration. Further than that, I was told that the fund regards it as an unnecessary expenditure for madame to employ a physician at $5 a visit, when she can get the best medical add in Saratoga for much less.

"It was suggested to me that when I got tired of boarding her for nothing, I turn her over to the overseer of the poor. That I do not want to do, and I do not think I could bring myself to do that. However, I cannot keep her and her maid without any pay, and I would like the madame's friends to know it. Some provision will have to be made for her by somebody pretty soon. The $5,000 she received from the benefit in 1901 was exhausted long ago.

Madame Janauschek's oldest friend and adviser is N. S. Wood of 529 Halsey street, Brooklyn, and he, it is understood, is trying to find some way of raising money for the aged actress.

JOHN W. GATES IN THIS CITY Leaves Saratoga Fully Restored to Health

-Backs Ragian to Win Futurity. Saratoga, Aug. 31 -- Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gates left here this afternoon for New York. Mr. Gates said before leaving that he was as well as ever he was, and his physician, Dr. Galvin S. May, made him a stronger statement. Dr. May said:

"Mr. Gates leaves Saratoga fully restored to health. He had lost something like seventy pounds when he arrived here and seventy pounds when he arrived here and he had gained thirty since he has been here. The dysentery was checked long ago and I am glad to say that to-day Mr. Gates is in perfect health."

A good story on Gates was told at the United States Hotel this evening. He had made plans to see the running of the Euturity, but his obysician would not hear.

Futurity, but his physician would not hear of any such thing. He concluded to take the refusal philosophically and on Saturday afternoon inquired in the hotel office if there was a poolroom in town. He was told where he might possibly find a hand book, so he hunted up the book and offered $500 on Ragian to win, the odds being 40 to 1. "This ain't no Bank of England, mister," said the hand book man when he got sight of the five-hundred-dollar note. "If you'll make it $5, mister, I'll go you." Mr. Gates had to smile in spite of the fact that it was near time for the horses to go to the post and he had nothing on the race.

Just as he was about to walk out Bob Davis, the well-known odds maker, who was in the room, stepped up and said:
"I'll be glad to take that bet, Mr. Gates, and some more of the same kind if you like. You're on $20,600 to $500."

You're on $20,000 to $500."

"Now, that's something like it," said Mr. Gates. "The bet goes."

The leader of the Chicago crowd walked out and came back before the last race and bet Davis $1,000 on Flying Ship at 1 to 2 and cashed.
"Hanged if I didn't quit even, which is a blamed sight better'n most of 'em did at the track," said Gates as Davis paid the bet. "Guess I've got a hunch for dinner."

FOR WARDEN, JACOB SNELL.

Me's Here Wandering If Me'll Get That Job Gov. Odell came to town yesterday, had breakfast with Mayor Low at the Union League Club, visited Republican State headquarters at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and spent the evening with Senator Platt at the Oriental Hotel, Coney Island. Gov. Odell and Senator Platt had many things to talk about. While they were chatting, Jacob Spell of Montgomery county was at the Fifth Avenue Hote Some months ago Gov. Odell, it is alleged promised Mr. Snell personally that he would appoint him warden of Napanoch Prison, in Ulster county, but there has been a hitch somewhere and Mr. Snell has not yet got the job.

It turns out that the present incumbent at Napanoch Prison is Warden Berry, a personal friend of Senator Jotham P. Allds of Norwich, Chenango county, and Senator Allds is sticking by Berry to the last ditch. Of course, the Republican majority in the Senate at Albany is slender, and espe-cially so when it is considered that Senator Brackett, Senator Brown and Senator Elsberg are on the warpath. But then, Senator Horace White of Syracuse is to senator Horace white of Syracuse is to be back in his place in Albany next winter, and then a lot of consideration is being given to the nomination of a Senator in the Westchester district to succeed Senator Charles P. Mr. Snell, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, said he wasn't worrying about the job of warden to Napanoch prison, but other Republicans, it is known, are somewhat disturbed over the situation, as there is no desire to anger Senator Allds and have him join the "insurgents" next winter, even though the Republicans should elect Mr. Mills in the Westchester district.
